

Cam Bogle is a 22-year old Country singer who first started performing at the age of 9. Cam was born in Portland, Maine, U.S.A and grew up in Burlington, Ontario, Canada. Bogle also played a high level of hockey from the age of 4. Standing at 6'6", his dream of playing professional hockey came to an end during draft year due to injuries and after experiencing multiple concussions. At the age of 17, the decision to pursue music professionally then became clear.

Since then, Cam has amassed a following of more than 460,000 collectively, on TikTok, Instagram and Twitter.

His deep love for Country music comes from the genre's storytelling nature. He mixes his Pop roots with his love for Country music and has bridged the gap between the two genres harmoniously.

Cam's rich country tone and energetic stage presence has earned him opportunities to open for Kane Brown, Dustin Lynch, Chris Janson, and Blanco Brown. The Country crooner has also been featured on iHeartRadio, Fox News, WSVN, CHCH, KISS Country, among other media outlets.

Most recently, before the onset of COVID-19, Cam was included in the lineup of the following festivals across North America: Burlington Sound Of Music Festival, Riptide Festival, KISS 99.9's Chili Cook-Off, Canada's Largest Ribfest, Goombay Festival, Hallandale Park Festival, Winterfest Boat Festival, Brown Sugar Festival, Dania Beach Seafood Festival, Miami Dade Snow Festival, and Toronto Youth Day. He was also scheduled to open for Miranda Lambert and Luke Bryan in the lineup of the Tortuga Music Festival in April 2020, prior to the postponement of live events.

Cam's new single, "Walking Out The Door" is available now on all digital platforms.
